A barn conversion of exceptional quality, Trugo Farm Cottage is part of a select courtyard development at Trugo Farm, situated in a stunning rural locale just six miles from the rugged North Cornish coastline.

The original farmhouse at Trugo Farm is thought to date back to the 1780s with Trugo Farm Cottage and the neighbouring dwellings converted some 30 years ago.

Perhaps unexpectedly, Trugo Farm Cottage benefits from approximately 0.33 acres of mature gardens and grounds with a luscious lawn and established shrubs and trees.

Features of note include a beautiful natural stone façade, thick internal stone walls, beamed ceilings, two wood burning stoves, granite kitchen work surfaces, a Rangemaster gas cooker, wood floors and UPVC double glazing.

The ground floor accommodation comprises no less than three unique reception rooms as well as a farmhouse style kitchen, entrance porch/boot room and a contemporary bathroom. Up on the first floor are two genuine double bedrooms both with built in storage cupboards, a third single bedroom and a modern fully tiled shower room.

The aforementioned gardens are of huge appeal, extending to approximately 0.33 acres of well stocked, highly mature and attractive grounds. The raised decked terrace at the rear of the cottage provides glorious far reaching rural views to the west and a vista of the gardens below. To the side is a wood store and storage sheds with five bar gate access from the parking area. The lawned gardens then stretch away from the cottage to the west, interspersed with those mature shrubs and trees and bordered by farmland. Halfway down the garden is a timber garage and at the bottom of the garden is a five bar gate. Please note, there is an historic 'postman's walk' /right of way across the garden.
