Seaburgh is a spacious and highly versatile detached home occupying a generous plot in the popular North Cornish village of St Merryn, within easy reach of the spectacular coastline and beaches of the Seven Bays.

Offering considerably more accommodation than might initially be apparent, the property is arranged over two floors and provides four double bedrooms, with two situated on the ground floor and two on the first floor. Whilst perfectly habitable in its present form, the house would now benefit from a programme of modernisation and cosmetic improvement, presenting an excellent opportunity for a purchaser to update and personalise the accommodation to their own style and requirements.

The ground floor provides comfortable and well-proportioned living space, including a sitting room with fireplace and a separate dining room. The kitchen is fitted with a range of timber-fronted units and integrated appliances, beyond which is a particularly useful utility room providing further storage, laundry facilities and additional appliance space.

Two double bedrooms are also positioned on the ground floor, together with a shower room, providing useful flexibility for family living, visiting guests or those seeking predominantly ground-floor accommodation. Upstairs are two further double bedrooms and a family bathroom. The first floor also enjoys access to a private outdoor balcony/sun terrace, providing an appealing space for a table and chairs and somewhere to sit outside and enjoy the sunshine and surrounding outlook.

A particularly interesting and valuable feature of Seaburgh is the separate two bedroom detached chalet, positioned within its own plot and benefiting from independent access. The chalet has already been substantially constructed and is presently at approximately second-fix stage, leaving the incoming purchaser with the opportunity to complete the accommodation to their own specification, style and taste.

Once finished, it could provide extremely useful additional accommodation, whether for extended family, guests or other ancillary purposes, subject to any relevant consents or restrictions. Perhaps more significantly, its independent access and separate plot also create an interesting longer-term opportunity. Subject entirely to obtaining the necessary planning permission, a purchaser may wish to investigate the potential for the chalet site to become a separate residential building plot, adding another dimension to an already versatile property.

Seaburgh sits within a generous and predominantly level plot, with lawned gardens, mature hedging, shrubs and established planting providing a pleasant degree of enclosure. There is ample outside space for recreation, entertaining and gardening, while the arrangement of the principal house and detached chalet gives the overall site an unusual degree of flexibility. There is ample driveway parking and an integral double garage.

Taken as a whole, Seaburgh represents an intriguing opportunity: a substantial four double bedroom home with plenty of scope for improvement, coupled with a separate partially completed two bedroom chalet and the possibility of further unlocking the potential of the overall site, subject to the necessary consents.

Services to the property include mains water, electricity and drainage with an oil fired central heating system. EPC rating E. Council tax band E. Ofcom suggest superfast broadband availability. Ofcom suggest 5G connectivity is available.
